Description

El atentado de los milicianos de Hamas en el sur de Israel del pasado mes de octubre incendió Gaza y elevó al máximo la tensión en todo Oriente Medio. La respuesta israelí, aun siendo esperada, no deja de estremecer por las consecuencias de muerte y destrucción que está teniendo. El riesgo de que el conflicto escale a toda la región no es menor.

La mesa redonda, integrada por especialistas en la materia, analizará el conflicto y sus consecuencias desde diferentes perspectivas, jurídica, política y humanitaria.

Asier Garrido Muñoz

Lecturer of Public International and European Union Law at The Hague University of Applied Sciences, and PhD in Law from the University of Salamanca (2011), where he served as an Assistant Professor until 2015. He was an Associate Legal Officer at the International Court of Justice (2015-2019), and an Associate Legal Officer at the Registry Legal Office of the International Criminal Court (2023, on leave from his academic duties). He has lectured or teaches as a guest lecturer or visiting professor at, among other institutions, the Hague Academy of International Law, Leiden University, the Center for International Studies of the Diplomatic School of Barcelona, and Paris Cité University. His research areas focus on the practice of international courts, international responsibility, and the law of international organizations. He is currently completing a treatise titled "The Law and Practice of International Administrative Tribunals," under contract with Cambridge University Press, of which he is a co-author, and which is expected to be published in 2025. He is regularly consulted by the newspaper El País on matters affecting the courts of The Hague.
